Introduction

If you are trying to build an online business and are not utilizing PLR in some capacity for your marketing, you are missing out on a relatively simple and effective tool to add to your marketing arsenal. It's a fast growing method of developing a great content for your site, blog, etc that you should definitely consider giving a serious try PLR, also known as private label rights, is a concept where a writer or creator sells the intellectual property rights of work they have created for someone else's. This can include an eBook, articles, software, templates for graphics and more. The uses of PLR content are practically unlimited. All that holds you back is your lack of trying it.

Generally the cost for purchasing a PLR product is cheaper than hiring someone directly to create content for you because the same product is usually sold to a limited number of buyers. Because of this, it is always a good idea when purchasing PLR content that you have the ability to modify the content enough so that you differentiate it from other material that can be found online. Adding your "special touch" and making the product your own can open many doors for you.

If you buy high quality PLR products you can get them at a small price. You'll save money and time. Rewriting PLR material and making it your own is so much easier than creating it yourself. You don't have to sweat the small stuff. You'll have more time to concentrate on higher, more important areas of your business. You'll end up with a creation that is yours and that you will be proud to offer to your customers without all the hassle of researching, writing, editing, etc. associated with creating the product yourself. You pay a little and get a lot of benefits in return.

If you look at many website or blog, you are very likely to find PLR products. You'll find the promotions for PLR eBooks on places such as forums, article directories, or social networks which greatly generate more traffic and help generate sales.

If you make sure you're using high-quality materials, you you'll get yourself or your business established much more quickly because you'll be giving your customers what they want and need.

For a beginning business, this can be a lifesaver. You have all the benefits of having your own valuable content without having to spend time seeing to it that everything is just so.

You can decide what you want, order it, spend a little time tweaking it and having something readily available when you launch your site. This gives you an advantage over others who are just starting out. You'll have quality content and will have been able to spend your time seeing to it that the valuable aspects of your business are in order and everything else is ready to go. It's really almost impossible to go wrong that way.

Here are 12 Ways To Make Money with PLR

1 🖱 Create an eBook or accompanying workbook. For audio or video PLR products, have it transcribed and create an eBook. Or for eBook products, create a workbook to help readers utilize and understand the material. Many people need that “hand’s-on” approach to learning information. Having workbooks is a great way to give it to them. It allows them to really think through and then act out what is you are trying to get across.

Offering a workbook in conjunction with the eBook, audio, or video content will cause your audience to feel they are getting a greater value for their money. If you want the information and more than one person can give it to you, who would you buy it from? Most people will choose the one who they feel is giving them the best deal. If I know that a workbook will enhance my conception of the tasks I need to learn from the workbook, I’ll definitely opt for the workbook. Most people are the same way.

2 🖱 Write a how-to guide. This is especially useful when re-selling PLR software. Provide a how-to guide or a video demonstrating simple tricks to use the programs or how to install the website templates.

Actually showing people how to do something can be extremely valuable for some people. Actually walking them through with a how-to guide in some or all formats gives them a greater grasp of what it is they're trying to learn from you. Content that gives people a clear picture of what it is they want to know will cause them to continue to want their information from you in the future, so it builds future

If you're unsure what it is you want to tell people how to do, simply do a bit of research. Google will let you know what keywords are currently being searched for as well as the most sought out topics. Find those where there isn't any information overload, and start there.

3 🖱 Use as material for a weekly podcast. Discuss the material and add to it by providing current event examples or personal experiences to create a connection with your audience. Podcasts are a great teaching experience for you and a great learning experience for your audience. You can take the PLR material and create segments you're excited about to share. It can even increase your audience if you add levels for your podcasts.

If technology is your thing, for example, creating a version of your podcast that can reach a beginner or someone who is “technologically challenged,” for those who have a fairly good grasp and are seeking a greater knowledge, or for those who are advanced where you can share information among the viewers can give you an extremely wide viewing audience. Does it take a little work to get started? Yes, but once you create your podcast, you can use it reach out and touch many others. The more you reach, the more visits you’ll have to your site.

4 🖱 Add content to your own report or eBook to add additional references or material. While your original eBook or product is likely great, by adding additional sources to it, you increase the value to your customers as well as your credibility. You can likely find many valuable resources that you may have never thought of. Adding those to your already good content can make it awesome content. Content truly is “the king” for any website or blog. The more valuable the content, the more likely others are to “like” or “share” on social media sites. Each of these helps build your search engine optimization. Take your good, add some better, and you can have content that is the BEST. This is content your customers will appreciate and definitely want more of.

5  Start an informational YouTube Channel. On a weekly or bi-weekly basis use portions of the content to create simple YouTube videos of you discussing the material. YouTube grows larger and larger each day. The ability to grow an audience of viewers is also growing by leaps and bounds. Use the PLR information, and then WOW them with a great intro to catch their attention and make them want to watch Remember that on a video, you only have about three seconds to grab your audience before they click off. Once you’ve hooked them, give them the valuable content and they’ll want to return for your next program. They’ll probably even subscribe if given the option.

The only thing that’s probably keeping you from having success on YouTube is you’re not on it. Get that quality PLR information on a channel and see how fast you can watch the traffic increase.

6 👉 Translate the content into other languages. This is a big way to gain access to other markets. Also keep an eye out for good PLR products that may be only available in other languages and then have it translated into English before another online entrepreneur gets access. The world of online businesses is truly a “world-wide” market. Internationally translated material gives you a good piece of that market.

You may have great material in English. If someone is Japanese, however, and they don't speak English, then your English material will have far less value to them. Not everyone is willing to struggle through when they only know a little of the language. They'll just look for something similar to your content in a language they understand. It's a lose/lose situation. They miss out on the better quality information, and you miss out on the sale. By translating, you can offer your information to the world in a way they can all comprehend that can be extremely profitable for you.

Use to Teach or Provide Educational Material

7 🖐 Build an eCourse about the material. Sell the eCourse as a complete package. When you're looking for training, an eCourse can be a very valuable package of information. Not only that, it can give the person who completes the eCourse a great sense of pride for learning a new skill or increasing their ability in an area. You can create "how-to" material which is great. Taking it a step further and creating an eCourse, however, can open doors for those who complete. Depending on what your niche is, your eCourse could be the difference in deciding which of two job seekers actually gets the job. Offer the right training to the right people, and it can open doors for you to not only build your own business, but open new horizons for future eCourses. For your first one, just find something in your niche that you are passionate about and comfortable with. Get the right PLR material for it and share it as an awesome training course that will attract more course enrollees than you thought possible.

8 🖱 Use the materials as resources or guideline to create a coaching program or Mastermind group. Coaching and/or mentoring programs are big in many niches. Your quality PLR content can help you create that as either your main goal or an extended service. If you establish yourself as an expert with good quality PLR material, people will be interested in how you can help them. They'll read it, and they'll believe it.

9 🖱 Create weekly webinars. Additional value can be added by contact experts in the field and use the PLR information to help steer each webinar or interview through your questions. Webinars are a great way to become more one-on-one with your viewers. Interacting through discussions in the group sessions can help build rapport with you and your target audience. In turn, this can be beneficial both to you and your business reputability, but also in helping your clients achieve their goals as well.

10 🖱 Use the information to respond as an expert on discussion forums or places like Yahoo Answers. Be sure when you respond that you link back to your website. Forums are a great way to get yourself known, build rapport with others in the forum, and send traffic to your site. By establishing yourself as an expert, if they like what you say on the forum, you can lead them to your site for more information.

Participating in forums by answering questions will also give you greater search engine optimization. It will mean more hits for your site when someone searches through sites like Google. The more traffic you build to your site, the greater your search engine optimization grows.

When people search for your topic content, it will be YOU they find on the page. Don't be shy about it, and don't try to "sell" yourself. A forum discussion should be just that—a discussion. You don't want to make it into an advertising campaign, just an outreach to bring people to you for more answers.

11 📌 Create a membership website. Charge a monthly subscription fee and use the information to populate your website with regular new content. If your content is valuable, people don't mind paying subscription fees. They know what they'll be getting is quality information. If people are willing to subscribe, then you know they're interested in what you have to say. Keep providing it for them, and they'll stay members. A monthly fee shouldn't be big in itself—it's in the number of members you attract. Make money by building your membership list, your profits will increase.

12 👉 Resale the basic selling rights. First, make sure you do have the rights to resell the product, but once that has been established, provide the product, or the revised product to your list allowing them to resell it. If someone buys something from you that they can turn around and make a profit from, it will be well worth it for them to make the investment of buying the basic selling rights.
